

Summary

The Yugoslav Movement Zbor in Niš

Among various political ideas, parties and political movements in the common state of the South Slavs, there appeared one Yugoslav political movement - Zbor. The political scene of Niš did not remain untouched by this movement and by the ideas it advocated. The movement, which was differently qualified – labelled by some people as purely fascistic, or as purely patriotic by others, at first had a role smaller than its real importance, and then larger than its power. Thus, it acted in Niš spreading its activities somewhere between the collaboration with the occupiers and treason and patriotic deeds. The fact that numerous important people of the town were its leaders, makes us reconsider the movement's historical qualification and try to make a proper estimation considering both its good and bad points.
