

Summary

Dušan Dimitrijević - the industrialist

A man who was very influential between two world wars. He became an orphan at an early age and had a very difficult childhood. As the first man in the family company "Braća Dimitrijević" ("The Dimitrijevic Brothers"), he brought progress to his birth village. The most influential people of the kingdom visited his house. His company somehow managed to survive both world wars, but it could not endure communist "liberation". Communists convicted him as "a public enemy", confiscated and banned from his village. This is a story about the disappearance of the middle class in Serbia after the communists came to power.
